THREE KINGS.

King Edward can speak German and French as fluently as English and a fair knowledge of one or two other languages.

Peter the Great was the last monarch who entered as a popular entertainer. He killed several ambitious soldiers with his own hands.

Alexander II., grandfather of the Emperor Nicholas, was economical in a high degree. By his will he left legacies to various quarters of the imperial family which swallowed up a third of his vast fortune, the remaining two-thirds being given to a army of the court; who had swelled the sovereign without mounting the throne.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

The current of electricity needed for starting a telegraph is enormously greater than that required for the relays.

The first direct current Edison dynamo operated in the United States was started by Thomas A. Edison at Somers July 6, 1885. The central station at Somers was the only one Mr. Edison ever put in operation.

Holometry is a form of force interconnection with heat, light and motion. There is about all anybody knows about it, though much has been learned about the laws of holometry and the practical uses to which it can be put.

There was some strong acting in the presentation of "The Bagged Messenger" in which Creston Clarke appeared at the opera house Saturday evening, but the piece itself did not appeal to the audience. Creston Clarke is all that he advertised to be, while he was surrounded by a capable cast, not the least of which was John Carter, an aged gentleman who took an aged man's part to perfection. A serious drawback of the presentation was the lack of scenery which made the ball room set with tawdry scenes, look strange in contrast with the fine costumes.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Habibullah Khan, the ammir of Afghanistan, has considerable architectural skill and is said to design his own palaces.
